Dear Participants,

It is our pleasure to welcome you to Portugal for the Lisbon Global Meeting on Law & Society, in the name of the Portuguese socio-legal community, and in the name of all the Portuguese institutions supporting the organization of this conference, in particular its host, ISCTE-Instituto Universitário de Lisboa. A special mention is also due to the Oñati International Institute for its active participation in our preparatory work.

To receive you all here – including those participating online – will surely encourage the development of socio-legal scholarship in Portugal. The richness of the debates, announced by the program, and the opportunity given to us to set up our own sessions on topics of special interest in the Lusophone area and in Portugal, will strongly stimulate our work in the future. For this impulse, we want here to express our warmest thanks.

It is also our conviction that Lisbon was a good choice – after Amsterdam, Glasgow, Budapest, Berlin, Honolulu, and México City – for this seventh Global Meeting on Law & Society, devoted to the topic Rage, Reckoning & Remedy. The recent history of Portugal, and its relationship to the Lusophone world, as well as the semiperipheral features of the Lusophone area, offer abundant substance for the discussion the Meeting intends to promote. This localized perspective also opens different insights into the current moment and allows us to talk about it in a different language, thereby making a slightly different way of thinking possible. This, we hope, will benefit our common work.

Beyond scholarly exchanges and collegial encounters, participants are invited to enjoy the beautiful city of Lisbon, its amazing mixture of past and present, the Tagus river, and the Atlantic coast nearby opening to other parts of the world. A place that might favour socio-legal imagination.

The LAC members
Lisbon, July, 2022
The Local Arrangements Committee for the 2022 Global Meeting was set up by co-chairs Susana Santos and Pierre Guibentif, and appointed by the President of the Law and Society Association, Laura Beth Nielsen, in June 2021. The Committee is constituted by a group of socio-legal scholars from universities and research centers from Portugal and the Oñati International Institute for the Sociology of Law.

GENERAL INFO
HOW TO ARRIVE IN LISBON
There are many ways to get to Lisbon and they are all easy to follow. With the airport just minutes from the city centre, railway stations that receive international connections and several ports for cruise ships, there are many options for entering the capital of Portugal. If you prefer to come by car, it has excellent access from various points on the border with Spain, from north to south of the country.

It lands at Lisbon’s international airport, which is a mere 7 km from the city centre. The main international airlines fly here, and just a 3-hour flight from the main European capitals, it’s very easy to get there.

Those arriving by boat in the city have one of the best views of Lisbon – that of the river – and can dock in 3 different places, all of them close to the center. If you come on a cruise ship, you can stay in Alcântara, Rocha Conde de Óbidos or Santa Apolónia. If you come to sail on your boat, there are several marinas up the river where you can rest.

It’s just as simple to get to the city center. National and international compositions arrive every day in Santa Apolónia, very close to all the traditional neighborhoods and Terreiro do Paço. But if you want to add a unique architectural experience to your arrival, choose to stay at Gare do Oriente, where the lines of Calatrava impress even those who pass by every day.

The best ways to enter Lisbon are the A1 and A2, with national and international connections at some points along the way. The landscape is beautiful and mobility in the region makes up for the hours of driving. After all, there is more to Lisbon than the city.

FROM THE AIRPORT TO THE CITY CENTER

Bus: nº 208, 705, 708, 722, 731, 744, 750 and 783:

These bus lines will also take you to the Airport or to the city center from the Airport. These urban buses stop regularly, so take longer to get to their final destination. However, keep in mind that these buses only allow luggage with a maximum size of 50x40x20cm. The price of a ticket when bought on board is € 2.00 two trips.

At Lisbon Airport there is a station with a connection to the City Center. This Airport-Saldanha route takes about 20 minutes and has connections to other lines that reach other parts of the city. It’s a quick and economical way to get around, as well as getting to know the metro stations – each with its own theme and decoration. The price of the ticket is € 1.50 for one-way trip.

Since the city center is very close, these are a very affordable transport option, even with a luggage and/or pet fee, which the driver may charge separately. To the city center, and depending on traffic, the route is fast, and can cost between 10 and 15 euros, with luggage included. If you choose this means of transport, make sure that the taximeter is turned on at the beginning of the journey and, when paying, always ask for a receipt/invoice.
HOW TO ARRIVE AT ISCTE

ISCTE-IUL is easily reachable by metro, several buses or by taxi. The campus is served by two metro stations (Cidade Universitária and Entrecampos) and an extensive network of buses that allow easy access to any other point in Lisbon.

From the airport (Lisbon International Airport, 7 km from the city centre) By regular bus: Line 744, direction Marquês de Pombal, stop at Entrecampos; or Line 783, direction Amoreiras, stop at Entrecampos.

By metro: take the red line, direction S. Sebastião and stop at Saldanha metro station; change to the yellow line, direction Odivelas and stop at Entrecampos subway station; 5 minutes on foot to ISCTE-IUL.

Average price between €8 - €10.

FROM OTHER LOCATIONS

Bus: numbers 701, 754 and 732 stop at Avenida das Forças Armadas, just outside ISCTE-IUL; bus number 755 stops at Cidade Universitária (5-minute walk to ISCTE-IUL).

Get off at Entrecampos train station, at Avenida da República; walk 250m towards the Entrecampos roundabout; at the roundabout, turn left, go up and straight ahead along Avenida das Forças Armadas and walk about 150m; ISCTE-IUL’s entrance will be on your right (signposted and a little recessed from the street, before the top of the hill).

Take the yellow line and stop at the Entrecampos subway station; walk towards the Entrecampos roundabout; at the roundabout, turn left, go up and straight ahead at Avenida das Forças Armadas and walk about 150 m; ISCTE-IUL’s entrance will be on your right (signposted and a little recessed from the street, before the top of the hill).
TRAMS IN LISBON are not only one of the best methods of transport for getting around the city but also one of Lisbon’s most important tourist attractions. Lisbon currently has five different routes and 58 trams, of which 40 are vintage streetcars. The heritage trams are small, nostalgic and an emblematic symbol of Lisbon, making for great photos. The price of a ticket when bought on board is € 3.00 one-way trip.

Of the five routes, we recommend two:

TRAM Nº 15
The tram 15 is the most frequently used tram in Lisbon because it connects the city centre and Belém. It is useful, modern and is always jam-packed with people, mostly tourists. The tram 15 departs from “Cais de Sodré” station, a large interchange station near Praça do Comércio.

NOSTALGIC TRAM Nº 28
The nostalgic tram 28 is an institution in itself. This wooden tram will transport you to another era. Its horn rings constantly to warn absent-minded pedestrians to move out of the way when it runs past the city’s long and narrow streets. The tram links São Jorge Castle and Bairro Alto, crossing various picturesque neighbourhoods for 6.2 miles (10 km), including Graça, Mouraria, Alfama, Baixa, Chiado, Madragoa and Bairro Alto. Thousands of tourists take this tram every day.

Owing to LISBON’S LIMITED METRO NETWORK, the city’s urban buses are essential to get to certain parts of Lisbon. Lisbon has a fleet of 600 buses and 146 different routes. The price of a ticket when bought on board is € 2.00 two trips. These are the usual urban buses:

Buses nº 26B, 400, 708 and 728: All these lines connect the city centre with Park of the Nations and stop at Lisbon’s most important railway station: Oriente Station. You can take any of these buses to Lisbon’s most modern area if you don’t like taking the subway.

Buses nº 201, 714, 727, 728, 729 and 751: These lines take you to Belém if you don’t want to take the tram (best option).
OPERATING HOURS
Not all buses in Lisbon follow the same timetable or have the same operating hours; it depends entirely on the bus line. However, most buses run from 6 am until 9 pm. The most popular lines run until midnight.

In Lisbon, the Rede da Madrugada (lines 201-210) runs every day when the day buses have completed their operating hours.

CARRIS AND METRO TRIPS
It costs 1.50, and it is valid on the entire CARRIS and Metro network. It allows you to make an unlimited number of trips for 60 minutes (counted between the first and last validation of entry).

24 HOURS CARRIS AND METRO TRIPS
Valid for an unlimited number of trips on the entire CARRIS and Metro network for 24 hours (counting from the first validation).

*Loadable with tickets and zapping, Viva Viagem is ideal for occasional users of this public transport.

LISBON'S ELEVATORS are basically funiculars that help locals and visitors climb the city's slopes. Discover the funiculars, prices, and operating hours. The lifts are called: Elevador do Lavra, Elevador da Glória, Elevador da Bica, and Elevador de Santa Justa. The price of a ticket when bought on board is € 3.80 two trips.

ELEVADOR DO LAVRA was inaugurated in 1884 and is the city's oldest cable car. It connects the streets Câmara Pestana and Largo da Anunciada, which run perpendicular to Avenida da Liberdade.

ELEVADOR DA GLÓRIA the best known and most popular of the three cable cars is the Elevador da Glória. It connects Restauradores Square with Rua San Pedro de Alcântara in Bairro Alto. At the top part of the Funicular, in Bairro Alto, you will enjoy some magnificent views over Lisbon from San Pedro de Alcântara viewpoint. The best in the city in our opinion. The Elevador da Glória was opened to the public on 24 October 1885.

ELEVADOR DA BICA runs through Rua da Bica de Duarte Belo to get to the Bairro Alto. It connects Rua de São Paulo with Calçada do Combro and was inaugurated on 28 June 1892, seven years after the Glória Funicular. It is the second most popular "elevator" after Elevador da Glória.

ELEVADOR DE SANTA JUSTA is the fastest way to get from Baixa to Bairro Alto. It has become one of Lisbon's top attractions and a great viewpoint. It was inaugurated as one of the city's public transport systems on 10 July 1902 and was called Elevador do Carmo (Carmo Lift). The Lift has a stunning observation deck at the top and offers magnificent views over Baixa. The price of a ticket when bought on board is € 5.30 two trips.
THE LISBON METRO is the fastest means of transportation. It is one of the cleanest and well-kept subway systems in Europe. Currently, Lisbon Metro has 56 stations and four lines:

- Blue (Seagull): Amadora Este – Baixa Chiado.
- Green (Caravela): Cais do Sodré - Telheiras.

OPERATING HOURS
The Lisbon Metro opens at 6:30 am and closes at 1 am. However, note that some stations close before this time. The price of the ticket is € 1.50 for one-way trip.

HOW TO GET TO CASCAIS AND SINTRA

CASCAIS The train to Cascais departs from Cais do Sodré station and the final station is Cascais. Trains depart every 15 minutes, between 5:30h – 1:30h, and a return ticket costs €4.50. As it is considered an urban train, if you have purchased the Viva Viagem card, you can use it to pay for your ticket. The journey takes about 40 minutes, which is fast and cheap. Besides, it is all along the banks of the Tagus River, which guarantees a very nice view!

SINTRA The trains to Sintra depart from Rossio station, which, by the way, is a very beautiful building located in the tourist heart of the city. The trip there takes about 45 or 50 minutes. Do not worry about the possibility of “missing” the stop, as the Sintra station is the final point of the train. But be careful: it is not to get off at Portela de Sintra station, which is before the final stop! Trains depart all the time, and a return ticket costs €2.50.

HOW TO GET ACROSS THE RIVER

FERRIES connect Lisbon to the suburbs across the river, where there are several beaches and restaurants to spend the day (Almada, Barreiro, Montijo, and Seixal). To Almada, they depart from stations in Cais do Sodré and Belém, to Barreiro they depart from the Terreiro do Paço station by Praça do Comércio, and to Montijo and Seixal they depart from Cais do Sodré.

THE FERRY FROM AND BACK TO LISBON offers a panoramic view of the city, so for tourists it is an inexpensive sightseeing activity. There are departures in both directions around every 20 minutes, until quite late at night (until 1:40am from Lisbon and until 1:20am from Cacilhas). The ticket is charged to the reusable magnetic Viva Viagem card. Try to get a window seat and do avoid rush hours.

TICKETS may be bought at the ticket office or from machines at the station. Here are the prices for single journeys of the different services:

- Cais do Sodré to Cacilhas: €1.30
- Belém to Porto Brandão-Trafaria: €1.25
- Terreiro do Paço to Barreiro: €2.50
- Cais do Sodré to Montijo: €2.85
- Cais do Sodré to Seixal: €2.50

HOW TO MOVE INSIDE CAMPUS

HOW TO FIND MY ROOM SESSION

For the conference you will need to register at the entrance of BUILDING II. To help you find the buildings and rooms, here are some instructions:

IN BUILDING II, the rooms beginning with “B” are on the edge of the library and with “C” on the edge of the canteen or in front, and “D” on the Wing for the teachers’ corridors; the number following the letter (C2, C3, C4) is relative to the floor, so the difference between rooms is the last number 1, 2, 3.

THE ALA AUTÓNOMA / BUILDING III - the rooms start with AA (building name) and the first number corresponds to the floor (AA2.23 is on the 2nd floor, AA3.24 is on the 3rd floor).

WHERE TO EAT, REST AND CHAT DURING THE CONFERENCE

The ISCTE-IUL Campus, which is exceptionally located, offers modern, spacious and functional facilities in a complex whose newest building, Edifício II, was earn the prestigious Portuguese architectural prize, the Valmor Prize, awarded by Lisbon City Council to Architect Raul Hestnes Ferreira.

ISCTE-IUL has one canteen, located on the 3rd floor of Building II, which serves lunch and dinner (it also has a bar service, on the 2nd floor).

Alongside its organizational and hosting responsibilities, the LAC - Local Arrangements Committee embraced the Lisbon Global Meeting on Law and Society as a unique opportunity to stimulate the academic development of socio-legal studies in Portugal, to foster transdisciplinary research dynamics and communication networks among different national academic and professional actors, especially enriched in the context of a global scale event. Therefore, within the scope of its mission and competencies, the LAC was committed to promoting an active engagement in the event on the part of national academic institutions in the areas of Law, Social Sciences, and Humanities, as well as the legal community in general, and also several cultural and artistic institutions. This commitment set the ground for the design of a special program of scientific and cultural events that could enable not only the cross-communication between national scholars and institutions, but also a showcase of Portuguese and Lusophone socio-legal scholarship, history, and culture to the international socio-legal community. These are the main tenets of the LAC Panels, the LAC Film Program and the Book Exhibit to which we warmly invite all attendees of the Lisbon Global Meeting on Law and Society.
Considering the issues traditionally addressed by socio-legal studies, and in particular the meeting’s theme, alongside the issues currently under debate in Portugal and the Lusophone world, the LAC sought to draw connections between these vectors to present a set of sessions coordinated and convened by LAC members and put forward in close contact with the Programme Committee and Law & Society Association’s Executive Officer. Some of these sessions are presented in partnership or collaboration with Portuguese academic or institutional entities to which we are deeply thankful.

With their support and through the work of LAC members, we were able to prepare a set of sessions addressing topics such as Lusophone constitutionalism and legal pluralism in the Lusophone world, constitutionalism from liberal to digital, drug decriminalization, access to caselaw, public law facing the pandemic, and, back to the Lisbon 2022 theme, forms of discrimination and racism.

By bridging between global and Portuguese, as well as Lusophone debates, the organizers hope to strengthen both the momentum of the activities to take place during Lisbon 2022, and thereby of the future development of the global socio-legal field, and, in one regional part of that field, of the momentum of socio-legal research in Portugal, notably by intensifying interdisciplinary cooperation between jurisprudence and social sciences.
Depending on its format and features of inception and organization, LAC Panels encompass a Plenary Session and a set of Special LAC Sessions, Featured Sessions, and LAC Sessions.

The one-year Oñati IISL International Master in Sociology of Law, accredited at the Law Faculty of the University of the Basque Country in San Sebastián-Donostia, Basque Autonomous Community, Spain, offers advanced education for graduate students from law and the social sciences at large. In his presentation, the Scientific Director will illustrate in detail, why and how the Oñati IISL Master's is unique in terms of pedagogical approach, intellectual scope, physical and socio-cultural environment, as well as the institute's alumni program. Over the last two years, the IISL has been working to bring Sortuz: the Oñati Journal of Emergent Social Legal-Studies to the academic spotlight. Sortuz was conceptualized as a publication space that, while maintaining high-quality standards for its content, is also accessible to the newer members of the socio-legal field, giving them an opportunity to start their academic careers and become known to their peers.
Algorithmic decision-making is now truly widespread among several sensitive contexts of everyday life, and it raises difficult and important questions from a socio-legal perspective that need to be discussed in a transdisciplinary fashion to be properly tackled. One of the most pressing issues concerns the human bias inherited by machine learning algorithms that gives rise to unfair and discriminatory outcomes. There is tremendous literature and research being carried out on these matters, but in Portugal, the legal academy is only now beginning to seriously approach the subject and its ramifications. Having this in mind, we intend to promote a discussion focused on the Portuguese context but enriched with views from foreign experts that can help us develop this stream of research. We shall intertwine different perspectives on the subject – technical, ethical, and legal – providing a far-reaching overview of different legal areas such as criminal and civil justice, data protection, and competition law. In this way, we also intend to contribute to the overall reflection proposed by the 2022 theme of the meeting since algorithmic discrimination may be seen as just one other form of perpetuating injustice and inequality.

PRESENTATION
Portugal joined the War on Drugs in the 1970s, even though drug use was not at the time a relevant social problem in the country. At the end of the 1990s, we observed a great increase in injectable heroin users, leading to significant health and social problems such as an HIV epidemic. As such, the vulnerability of high-risk users raised concerns among the broader society, as well as in prisons where these problems were more intense in scale and nature. It was within this framework that it was implemented the Portuguese National Drug Strategy at the end of the 20th century, culminating in 2001 with the commonly referred to as the drug decriminalization law. Law no. 30/2000 decriminalized personal drug use and kept drug dealing (production, manufacture, and trade of illegal drugs) legally framed by the Decree-Law n. 15/93. Drug use was placed under the jurisdiction of the Commissions for the Dissuasion of Drug Addiction, a non-penal organism, which has multidisciplinary teams responsible for psychological support and health support referral.

Over these two decades of the drug decriminalization law’s implementation in Portugal, this new legal and political approach to drugs has raised great national and international debate, and many divergent opinions. Hence, this LAC session aims to present the Portuguese model of drug decriminalization, its various dimensions, and how it is operationalized in practice. It also critically discusses the current developments and challenges raised by the Portuguese drug policy and the expected evolution of the phenomenon of drugs and their dynamics. Finally, some responses and future guidance are provided both in terms of the national policy as well as for the international debate of other geographies across the world.

PORTUGAL’S UNFULFILLED RIGHT OF ACCESS TO CASELAW
Session featured by LAC & NSL/CEDIS

PRESENTATION
Session on the topic of the lack of compliance with the constitutional mandate of access to caselaw in Portugal and its implications, namely, for the development of the legal system itself (by internal operators), for academic research (legal, socio-legal, historical, etc.), for research-based public policies, for technological advances in the justice system administration (e.g. based on artificial intelligence), and also for the dissemination of legal information through journalism as one important gatekeeper of transparency and accountability for the judicial system; holding this session in the context of the meeting will be of special interest for the topic, since the North-American system is, in this matter, a very relevant example and paradigm for good practice guidelines, and, therefore, the discussions and interactions that may be developed with North-American colleagues and institutions are especially important.

PRESENTATION
200 years ago (1822), following the first liberal revolution (1820), the first Portuguese Constitution was approved by Parliament and a constitutional monarchy was born, replaced by a constitutional Republic following the 1910 revolution. Key principles of the 1822 Constitution, which have persisted until today include human rights such as individual liberty, equality before the law, and property rights; the nation as the basis for national sovereignty; that the parliamentary assembly (then the Cortes) was to be elected by the nation, and that legislative power was supreme; the separation of powers between the executive, judiciary, and legislature. To place the 1822 Constitution in context: Article 34 granted the vote to all men aged 25 or over who could read and write. Women, the illiterate, members of religious orders, and servants were not permitted to vote. In those times, 80% of the Portuguese could not read. Constitutionalism emerged in the context of the nation-state as a means to structure and limit political power and guarantee fundamental rights within a sovereign community. Constitutionalism evolved to accompany political change and also economic and social change. Today, constitutionalism and constitutional theory are being challenged by an array of economic, social, and technological dynamics, which range from globalization to digitalization. Against this background, sociological perspectives on constitutionalism (societal constitutionalism) help broaden the concept and align constitutions with emergent rights and the call for the control of new powers, political, economic, and technological. Following Teubner (2004), the question could be formulated as: “How is constitutional theory to respond to the challenge arising from the three current major trends - digitization, privatization, and globalization? That is how today’s ‘constitutional question’ ought to be formulated, by contrast with the 18th and 19th-century question of the constitution of nation-states.” “The point today is to discipline quite different social dynamics.” By viewing constitutionalism as both beyond and within the state, the theory of societal constitutionalism helps envision responses to constitutional challenges of the 21st century, notably in the transnational economy and in the digital sphere (Golia and Teubner, 2021).

BRIDGING LEGAL THEORY AND SOCIO-LEGAL STUDIES IN THE IBERIAN CONTEXT

Session featured by LAC & LxLTG

PRESIDENT
To describe and provide explanations about the law, its contents, and the legal phenomenon in general is a goal shared by many legal theorists and socio-legal scholars. Yet, fruitful conversations and joint undertakes between researchers and theorists from both disciplines are still scarce. Moreover, conversations between them are often shadowed by a lack of mutual understanding of several conceptual, theoretical, methodological, and normative underlying assumptions carried by each perspective. It’s not unusual that this miscommunication is sometimes driven by misconceptions and even some prejudice grown by decades of disciplinary confinement. Nevertheless, there are today many efforts to bridge the two fields and many streams of theoretical and methodological research are flourishing in this light with legal theorists and philosophers engaging with social science and vice-versa. With this session, we intend to provide an opportunity to reinforce this trend by stimulating debate between researchers and scholars within the Iberian context and encouraging the advancement of both fields in Portugal, where these epistemic communities are still underdeveloped. Since a lot of the miscommunication that goes on sometimes stems — we believe — from a «lost in translation» dynamic, we would like to foster a debate that could enable some clarification on key notions and topics that are a cornerstone to each field but susceptible to different conceptual and disciplinary appropriations. This clarification endeavor could be a useful tool to chart a theoretical and conceptual geography on which to ground some communication points, at least, around some vectors of each field.

Boaventura de Sousa Santos is arguably one of the most prominent social scientists currently at work. His multifaceted scientific approaches have been inspiring for several generations of researchers in the social sciences and the humanities not only in Portugal, Brazil, and the Portuguese-speaking African countries but also in many other places virtually across all continents. His daring epistemological proposals and his wide-ranging combination of thorough empirical research and innovative theoretical perspectives have opened new and exciting ways of inquiry and led to many original insights, particularly into the specificities of peripheral and semiperipheral societies. The analytical tools provided by his theoretical framework allow for ways of avoiding the epistemological blindness affecting mainstream approaches vis-à-vis the specific characteristics of these societies. As his work, already translated into several languages, reaches an increasingly wide readership, his influence is steadily spreading all over the world. His contributions to the renewal of the social sciences and, more generally, the reconfiguration of knowledge across the social sciences, the humanities, and the natural sciences, provide the conditions for a renewed academic and scientific dialogue, based on full recognition, across the North-South divide, as well as his longstanding commitment to the development of a socially responsible science, stand out as far-reaching achievements in the ongoing process of reconstructing knowledge in its many forms in a rapidly changing world. From Critical Legal Studies to Epistemologies of the South represents a long journey that is still far from an end!

The Black Lives Matter movement had an impact in Portugal with antiracist groups gaining momentum and some visibility in the public sphere. Nonetheless, debating memory around public monuments and colonial art was received with indifference and some backlash from mainstream sectors of Portuguese society accusing antiracist movements of being wrong and reverting racism against Portuguese history. The memory of the Empire is still present and molds national identity based on a generalized depiction of lusotropicalismo, a singular form of colonization, made popular by Brazilian historian Gilberto Freyre (1900-1987). After the expansion and establishment of the Empire, based on enslavement, human traffic, and colonization, after the defeat of the Portuguese Empire at the colonial war in different African regions and the birth of new countries – Angola, Cabo Verde, Guiné Bissau, Moçambique and São Tomé e Príncipe – preceded by the reintegration of Goa, Damão and Diu in the Indian state, now that a new community of Portuguese speaking countries, CPLP has been established within the space of the former Empire, it is urgent to confront our Western and non-Western memories with several questions: What is the Empire? Whom is identified and discriminated by it? How does the circulation of a State’s official narrative about colonial past in educational textbooks, monuments, and other artifacts produce juxtaposed and contradictory incorporated feelings, from naturalization to wounds renewal? How to remedy and heal such discriminations and wounds?

This session is part of a thematic package that seeks to address some tensions between Public Law and the Covid-19 pandemic, namely stemming from the challenges posed by the pandemic in face of specific constitutional and legal pre-conditions but also arising within the public law arena that frames and enables social policy and political decision-making. Whilst session II will be mainly focused on comparative legal models developed in response to the pandemic, this session is intended to address the specific Portuguese context.

We intend to address three main sets of topics broadly and critically framed within the question about the role of the Portuguese Parliament in the fight against the pandemic: i) legislative proceedings under pressure; ii) the reconstruction and critical assessment of the doctrinal divide that emerged within the public discourse of the public law community; iii) and the apparent communication gap between law and science considering its additional legitimation through knowledge.
The United Nations General Assembly adopted resolution 68/237 defining the period 2015-2024, ‘International Decade for People of African Descent’, with the theme “People of African descent: recognition, justice, and development”. In Portugal, the debate around the conditions of African descendants, racism, and inequalities has gained new strengths and visibilities with a novel generation of scholars combining research with activism. This session wishes to address this vibrant community combining talk with art.

The Carnation Revolution in 1974 inspired several movements from the political, civil society, cultural and artistic milieu. Across Europe groups and individuals went to Portugal to experience a pacific revolution and to engage in common activities. Portugal and the Revolution were at the main outlets. The experience split over the borders and inspired other societies to embrace the path to democracy facing their dictatorship regimes, like Spain, Greece, and Brazil. During a short but intense period, from 25th April 1974 to 25th of November 1975, a new society was discussed and put into action in small assemblies, rallies, occupations, and new political parties emerged. From education to housing, from freedom of speech to freedom of the press, from alternative economic models of production to women’s rights, a lot was at stake at the time.

In this session, we would like to invite the participants to travel to the past with our present lens to discuss constitutional, political, economic, and social change, engaging in a debate around four topics: constitutional revolution; freedom of religion; economic alternatives and labor; and civil society movements.

The present session seeks to present, discuss, and compare constitutional experiences across the Portuguese-speaking countries with legal scholars and social scientists from Angola, Brazil, Cape Verde, Mozambique, and Portugal. Theories of societal, transformative, or plurinational constitutionalism and different approaches to legal pluralism provide multiple frameworks to recognize the plurality of laws, knowledge, institutions, legitimacies, and identities and to broaden and transform views beyond the Eurocentric state-centered constitutionalism. State-centered constitutionalism tends to be blind to diversity, citizens’ participation, and power dynamics and struggles within societies, whether political, economic, social, or (inter)cultural. Issues to be addressed in this session might include: What are the contemporary challenges that legal pluralism, interculturality, and globalization launch to constitutionalism? What might be learned from the constitutional experiences of the diverse countries considered? Attention might be paid to the “constitutionalism of exception” and the current crisis of the rule of law.

Whilst session I will be mainly focused on the Portuguese context, this session is intended to address comparative legal models developed in response to the pandemic within the broad socio-legal topic of states of exception. Engaging in a comparative public law perspective and drawing heavily on data collected during the pandemic by different research projects, the session will tackle some of the challenges faced by public law in different jurisdictions, be it at the constitutional or the administrative dimensions, enabling also a critical reflection on some of the specific solutions of the Portuguese legal order and an evidence-based assessment of its merits or demerits in face of contextual and retrospective analysis.
This session is based on historical research into the use of law and the courts by subalternized groups (slaves, freedmen, indigenous people, and women), in order to discuss the hypothesis of a law of the underlings of today: drawing from concrete examples of historical subalternized and their conceptualization, we suggest updating the notion and category of underlings that are judged by today’s courts and squeezed into the legal system, identifying who fills the category today and what type of law is reserved for them.

We intend to discuss with speakers from different areas the representations and idea of rights and law of the subalternized groups, this perspective will link the past with the present. Based on historical approach and contemporary experiences that represent the plurality of roles that intervene today in a so-called law of underlings - especially to raise interest for this subject among future jurists and judges, who will also judge the "subaltermos" - but also enriched by interdisciplinary contributions.

António Manuel Hespanha (1945-2019) was an exceptional Portuguese scholar that left us too soon. He is widely known and recognized as a critical legal historian and his contributions to legal historiography are remarkable in every respect: from theoretical and methodological reflections to substantive historiographical investigations. Furthermore, his historiographical works were constantly tempered with incursions and contributions to and from legal theory, sociology of law, political science, and sociological theories in general. It was thus at this crossroads of disciplines that Hespanha sought to satisfy his scientific curiosity about the legal phenomenon, and from his body of work - which translates into more than 40 years of academic production – emerged a broad and multifaceted view of law and legal dynamics in society. At the LAC, we decided to celebrate the scholar but also the teacher, the researcher, the mentor, the colleague, and the friend that António Hespanha was to many in Portugal and abroad. We thus intend to recollect some of his main working subjects and approaches within legal history, legal theory, and socio-legal studies, highlighting, in line with the Meeting’s theme, his special contributions to colonial studies and the reconceptualization of the Portuguese empire. And we also want to remember and pay tribute to the special way in which he built his trajectory and helped pave the way for so many others.

António Hespanha was always eager to promote intellectual encounters and facilitate exchanges between those around him – likewise, the organization of this tribute is the result of confluences among some of the many that Hespanha gathered around his work: notwithstanding its inception as a LAC initiative, the design and conception of this homage also builds upon the program set up by the organizers of the seminar series «Reler António Hespanha» which began in February 2020 and was abruptly interrupted by the Covid-19 pandemic. In this way, this tribute resumes the work previously put forward by Ângela Barreto Xavier, Cristina Nogueira da Silva and Pedro Cardim with the seminar series, but in a different setting and renewed format as a result of the conjoint work carried with the LAC – which turns out to be the expression of new confluences still being brought upon by António Hespanha.

CEAD – CENTRO DE ESTUDOS AVANÇADOS EM DIREITO FRANCISCO SUÁREZ / CEAD FRANCISCO SUÁREZ CENTER FOR ADVANCED STUDIES IN LAW is an R&D unit of the Universidade Lusófona that aggregates the research developed by the three law schools of Lusófona: Lisbon, Porto and Portimão. Seeking to do justice to Francisco Suárez, its patron, Jesuit priest, philosopher and jurist, CEAD adopts a strategic vision beyond the boundaries of Law, centered on dialogue between diverse themes and disciplines and integrating researchers from other scientific areas, such as Psychology, Criminology, Political Science, Economics and Veterinary Sciences. CEAD adopts a working structure centered on five research lines, reflecting this multidisciplinary strategy: Individuality, Solidarity, Law; Law Beyond Borders; Justice and Freedom; Law, Life and Technology; and State, International Society, Human Action. These five Research Lines function as thematic axes of research, bringing together researchers who share common interests, allowing for the development of truly collaborative research. CEAD also integrates three periodical publications: De Legibus, ULP Law Review and Jurismat. http://cead.ulusofona.pt

CEDIS – CENTRO DE I&D SOBRE DIREITO E SOCIEDADE / CEDIS - RESEARCH CENTRE ON LAW AND SOCIETY is a research and development unit of NOVA School of Law, whose mission is to promote the quality and innovative character of its members’ research, contributing to the development of Law. Financed by the Foundation for Science and Technology (FCT), by European institutions and other institutions in the area of Law and Society, it embraces the main disciplinary areas and research teams of NOVA School of Law and follows its research policy, that privileges multidisciplinarity, transversality, and internationalization. Research activities are organized into research groups and centres, and focus on scientific fields ranging from the relationship between Law and History, Law and Social Sciences, Economics and Governance of the Sea, Human Rights and Business, International Law and European Union, Law and New Technologies, Equality Law, Law and Security, as well as topics such as the Environment and Sustainability, Mobility, the Digital Economy, Space, Biotechnology and Artificial Intelligence. The research strategy is aligned with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and the European Union's strategic priorities, and aims to contribute to raising the quality of scientific production with an impact on public policies and society. https://cedis.novalaw.unl.pt

CIDP – CENTRO DE INVESTIGAÇÃO DE DIREITO PÚBLICO / CIDP - LISBON CENTER FOR RESEARCH IN PUBLIC LAW is a research center of the University of Lisbon School of Law devoted to Public Law. Its main areas of research are Constitutional Law and Political Science, Administrative Law, International, and European Union Law, and Legal Theory and Legal Philosophy. It has been ranked by the national granting authority for scientific research – the Foundation for Science and Technology – as the top R&D unit in legal science in Portugal. https://www.icjp.pt/cidp

IISJ – INSTITUTO INTERNACIONAL DE SOCIOLOGÍA JURÍDICA DE OÑATI / IISJ - OÑATI INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR THE SOCIOLOGY OF LAW was established by the International Sociological Association’s Research Committee on the Sociology of Law and the Government of the Basque Country in Oñati, Gipuzkoa, Spain in 1988. From the outset, the Institute created academic links and collaborative relations with various European and non-European universities by providing facilities for seminars, workshops, visiting scholars, and library research. The Institute has as a result grown into an important base for the global network of scholars who work on law and social science issues. https://www.iisj.net

LEGALPL / LEGAL PLURALISM IN THE PORTUGUESE EMPIRE (18TH-20TH CENTURY) is a project funded by the FCT (PTDC/DIR-OUT/30873/2017). It aims to study the encounter between Portuguese and indigenous legal orders, in areas colonized by the Portuguese, in different times (from the 18th to the 20th century) and geographies (America, Africa, Asia). We want to know how different legal orders were classified and hierarchized by colonial agents, how (or with which purposes) those legal orders were used by the colonizers and the colonized, how they interacted and were transformed by different colonial situations and, finally, the kind of colonial legal systems these processes gave rise to. http://pluralismojuridiconoimperio.fd.unl.pt
LXLTG - LISBON LEGAL THEORY GROUP is an academic group set up within the University of Lisbon School of Law with the institutional support of the Lisbon Center for Research in Public Law (CIDP). Its primary purpose is to develop research and promote a public and academic debate over different subjects related to Legal Theory and Legal Philosophy or, in a broader sense, Jurisprudence. The LXLTG is formed by scholars with a legal and or a philosophical education, mainly from the University of Lisbon School of Law, but also from other schools, such as the NOVA School of Law. It comprises currently approximately 15 permanent members. The LXLTG also accommodates scholars staying for short periods of time, mainly for research and participation in our events. The LXLTG organizes the following type of scientific events: Reading Group; Permanent Workshop; Dialogues with Students; Annual Meeting; Annual Lecture. The LXLTG also promotes the publication of scientific work, not only the one specifically carried out by its members individually but also as a collective. https://www.lxltg.com

NSL / NOVA SCHOOL OF LAW has been, since its foundation, at the forefront of Law Education. We ceaselessly seek to anticipate the needs of the labour market, and we have innovation in our DNA. In fact, innovation, along with multidisciplinarity, internationalization and focus on the great challenges of the 21st century are the mottos of all our degree courses. We believe that studying at NOVA School of Law is learning to change the world and daring a NEW way of learning how to think about Law. We are open to society, to new branches of Law and to other Social Sciences, with specific focus on contemporary changes to public life and its inherent problems. We do not regard our students as empty vessels, but rather, we enhance their individual qualities, open doors and broaden their horizons. Through debate between ideas, cultures and talents, we prepare those who want not only to be competent lawyers, but who want to stand out in the crowd to make a difference, in Portugal and in the world. Through constant, tireless and individual effort, everyone – professors, staff and students alike – questions what is within and beyond. We look for new realities, we go beyond boundaries and borders. This is our commitment, which evolves and adapts in response to the changes and demands of society and of consequent student needs. https://novalaw.unl.pt

PROVEDOR DE JUSTIÇA / PORTUGUESE OMBUDSMAN is an independent state body established in 1975, which everyone can access free of charge, and which defends people whose fundamental rights have been violated or who feel aggrieved by unfair or illegal acts of the administration or other public authorities. It can act on its own initiative, but as a rule, it receives and analyzes citizens’ complaints, listens to the entities concerned, and tries to solve the problems presented to it quickly and informally. It has the power to request all information and to carry out the investigations and inquiries it deems necessary, and it may conduct unannounced inspection visits to any sector of the Public Administration. Unjustified failure to comply with the duty to cooperate constitutes a crime of disobedience. It does not, however, have binding decision-making powers. Its power resides in the well-foundedness of the positions it takes and in its ability to mediate. https://www.provedor-jus.pt

RESISTANCE is an international research project that intends to study the resistance of subordinated social groups in the Iberian empires of the past (1500-1850) from a “bottom-up” perspective. It pursues a comparative approach between different spaces, comprising Europe, America, Asia, and Africa, and will analyze both phenomena of active and passive resistance, as well as its real transforming impacts. The project has received funding from the European Union’s Horizon 2020 research and innovation program under the Marie Skłodowska-Curie Actions program (778076-H2020-MSCA-RISE-2017). http://www.resistance.uevora.pt

UNIVERSIDADE DA MAIA – ISMAI / UNIVERSITY OF MAIA - ISMAI is a non-state university located on a modern campus endowed with excellent infrastructures, state-of-the-art technological equipment and an on-campus Sports Complex. It is divided into 4 departments - Social and Behavioural Sciences; Business Sciences; Physical Education and Sports Sciences; Communication Sciences and Information Technologies; offers 31 bachelor’s, master’s and PhD programmes, and has 6 research units integrated in inter-institutional research centres, which provide support for the development of scientific research. Its mission is to promote the creation, transmission and diffusion of culture, art, science, and technology by combining study, teaching, research, experimental development, and service provision, as well as fostering and valuing the integral training of students and staff, and motivating them for innovation and development. The institutional motto is “Bonum studium, optimus labor”. https://www.ismai.pt
LAC FILM PROGRAM featured by LAC & sponsored by Universidade Lusófona. Programming by Patrícia André (LAC) in collaboration with Edmundo Cordeiro (CICANT/DCAM/ULHT).

The film program is divided into two thematic lines:

- one, on July 15th, related to the political, constitutional, and social history of Portugal, focusing on the 25th of April, the revolutionary period, and the post-revolution;
- another thematic line, on July 16th, related to the general theme of the conference (Rage, Reckoning, and Remedy) and connected to the questions of colonialism and empire, put into perspective through Portuguese cinematography.

The film sessions were designed in articulation with the LAC Panels to offer insightful contributions to the reflections and subjects tackled in the closing LAC sessions of each day of the film program. In this way, the session Towards the 50th anniversary of the April 25th Revolution (on the 15th) and the sessions of the Tribute to António Manuel Hespanha (on the 16th) are thematically in line with the films scheduled afterward and we strongly encourage to combine them for a deeper and multilayered take on the matters discussed and portrayed.

The LAC Film Program was made possible thanks to Universidade Lusófona which not only decided to partner with the LAC on the scientific program and support one of the LAC Panels (through its legal research center CEAD Francisco Suárez) but also committed itself to the sponsorship and hosting of the film program.

It all started with a picture taken in 1974 in Lisbon, just after the Portuguese Revolution. She, the Revolution Hunter, tries to enter that picture as if she could enter into a time she didn't belong and finally understand what it means to be part of a revolution or what it means to fight for a country. A Caça Revoluções is a film that explores the relationship between two generations, two different times, and two different fights. As if we could transform a photograph by drawing on it. As if we could transform the present by drawing over the past.

The Revolution Hunter
Directed by Margarida Rêgo
Portugal/UK, 2014 – 11 min

Arms and the People is the most famous film of the Portuguese Revolution. Shot in the week between the 25th of April and the 1st of May, 1974, it brings together the mass demonstrations and the speeches of Mário Soares and Álvaro Cunhal, the release of the political prisoners, and the street interviews made by the Brazilian filmmaker Glauber Rocha. Directed by the Collective of Workers of the Cinematographic Activity, it is a priceless historical document, made on the fly by several Portuguese filmmakers and technicians. An inescapable part of European militant cinema, Arms and the People is also a manifest on the relation between cinema and politics, not only as a mere diffuser of the events but mainly as an active participant of the revolutionary act.

The screening of Arms and the People is possible thanks to the collaboration of Cinemateca Portuguesa – Museu do Cinema.

In 1975, Thomas Harlan’s crew filmed Torre Bela’s homestead occupation, in the center of Portugal. Three decades later, RED LINE revisits this emblematic film of the Portuguese revolutionary period: in which way did Harlan interfere in the events that seem to naturally develop in front of the camera? What was the impact of the film on the lives of the occupants and the memory of that period?

Ghosts of an Empire explores the colonial imagination of Portuguese cinema since the beginning of the 20th century. The documentaries and fictions that carry the imperialist project are contrasted with contemporary films and gazes. Seven Portuguese filmmakers - Fernando Matos Silva, João Botelho, Margarida Cardoso, Hugo Vieira da Silva, Ivo M. Ferreira, Manuel Faria de Almeida, Joaquim Lopes Barbosa - open the chests of colonial cinematographic memory and dialogue with two actors, the São Toméan Ângelo Torres and the Angolan Orlando Sérgio. They examine the real, re-invented or repressed past that haunts memories: the myths of discovery, the imperial fiction, the colonial epic factory, the masks of violent domination. José Manuel Costa, director of the Cinearte Portuguesa, and Maria do Carmo Piçarra, researcher, bring historical perspectives on certain aspects of the production. Ghosts of an Empire brings together heterogeneous cinematographic fragments and various points of view, and shows the variations and evolutions of the glances, especially on “the other”, formerly called “colonized”, yet perennial fellow citizen of our humanity. By playing on counterpoints, echoes, contrasts between situations, images, dialogues, music, the film weaves a web of imaginations and attitudes, memories, and emotions. And it questions the persistence of ghosts in the present and the future of cinema.

A visual and soundscaped short ambiance voyage through an utopian, ghost-like city-state. In this mid-twentieth century imaginary Lisbon, the power plants continue to produce energy, brand new subway network locomotives’ engines hum on standby, city lights and neon signs come alive each night, and radio receivers spread Salazar’s [Portuguese Dictator] speeches - yet, nowhere is to be found the slightest human presence: there isn’t anyone to see and hear this newcomer modernity’s heartbeat. Only statues and facades inhabit the metropolis. Ashes is a short film made entirely from photographs of the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation Art Library Archive.

LUSÓFONA UNIVERSITY CAMPUS
The most pleasant way to reach Lusófona on foot is to leave ISCTE through the back exit of Building II, turn right, and at the end of the street cross to the Campo Grande Garden. At the garden, turn left and walk through it until it’s time to get back on the street on your right hand and cross it right in front of Lusófona Campus (check the map for further details). It’s about 1.2 km away, so expect a 10 to 20 min. walk depending on your pace.

LAC BOOK EXHIBITION

Books and all other kinds of publications are at the heart of academic and scientific work, so we couldn’t overlook a chance to provide attendees with the much appreciated delight of browsing through shelves filled with new to books to discover.

The LAC invited a handful of Portuguese publishers and some of our academic partner institutions to showcase their work and sell their most relevant publications to anyone interested.

And with the thoughtful help of L&SA and the collaboration of several authors who are attending the Meeting, we will also showcase new books released in the field, which is an excellent opportunity to see first hand the most recent contributions of knowledge in the good old fashioned way of physical books.

So be sure not to miss it in your straying breaks, and head to the EXHIBITION ROOM, right next to the GRANDE AUDITORIO, on the first floor of BUILDING II.

There you will find the BOOK EXHIBITION and stands by Centro de Estudos Sociais, Imprensa de Ciências Sociais, Mundos Sociais, and Universidade Lusófona.

AND SINCE YOU’RE AROUND...

Before using the guide: This is not a travel guide. It does not provide an exhaustive list of all places you can visit. Our goal is to show you the city through the lens of Lisbon residents, and share with you the places we usually go to. Some places you can find in all Lisbon guides, others are just local spots. Hope you have a good time!
We also added some fiction books available in English and Portuguese, in which Lisbon is an important character, and a Spotify list to discover the sounds of the city.

CEAD, the FRANCISCO SUÁREZ CENTER FOR ADVANCED STUDIES IN LAW, a R&D unit of the Universidade Lusófona, aggregates the research developed by the three Law Schools of Lusófona: Lisbon, Porto and Portimão.

Seeking to do justice to Francisco Suárez, its patron, Jesuit priest, philosopher, and jurist, CEAD adopts a strategic vision beyond the boundaries of Law, centered on dialogue between diverse themes and disciplines and integrating researchers from other scientific areas, such as Psychology, Criminology, Political Science, Economics and Veterinary Sciences.

RESEARCH LINES:
- Individuality, Solidarity, Law
- Law Beyond Borders
- Justice and Liberty
- Law, Life and Technology

Research Hubs
Across the various research lines, in the coming years CEAD’s research will be developed around three themes that act as hubs aggregating the research outputs:
- Health and Medicine
- Digitalization
- New Territories and New Frontiers

PUBLICATIONS:
- De Legibus
- ULPLaw Review
- Jurimat

The Centre for Social Studies of the University of Coimbra, founded in 1978, is a scientific institution focused on research and advanced training within the Social Sciences, the Arts and the Humanities, through an inter and transdisciplinary approach. It is an Associated Laboratory, a status awarded by the Portuguese Ministry of Science in recognition of CES’ contribution to public policies, advanced training and the dissemination and sharing of knowledge.

CES conducts research with and for an inclusive, innovative and reflexive society by promoting creative critical approaches in the face of some of the most urgent challenges of contemporary societies.

A long-standing international reference in the field of Sociology of Law, CES remains deeply committed to democratizing knowledge, revitalizing human rights and contributing to the establishment of science as a public good. Its overall objectives are:

- To foster innovative epistemologies and methodologies, and critical thinking;
- To stimulate an ecology of knowledges, acknowledging cultural diversity and knowledge produced by citizens and by social movements;
- To strengthen relations with the Global South;
- To boost science in society and for society;
- To promote research on culture and the arts and foster new ways of reflecting and self-reflecting on science, knowledge and society;
- To support the formulation of public policies.

Research at CES is organized in five Thematic Lines - major transdisciplinary and transversal thematic clusters. One of these is devoted to Democracy, Justice and Human Rights, aiming to analyse the persistence of systems of oppression that are intertwined in the structures of racism, heteropatriarchy and capitalism, and to examine the socio-legal, socio-political and socio-cultural resistances that, in the framework of the modern State and beyond, produce alternative grammars of dignity.

CES further hosts a diversified number of interdisciplinary, thematic PhD Programmes in partnership with the University of Coimbra. They include a first course year, close monitoring and supporting each student’s scientific progression through research seminars, and privileged access to internationally renowned guest lecturers/researchers. Among the doctoral programmes on offer, two are of particular relevance to socio-legal research: Sociology of the State, Law and Justice and Human Rights in Contemporary Societies.
CICS.NOVA
INTERDISCIPLINARY CENTRE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

MISSION
CICS.NOVA’s mission is to conduct interdisciplinary research in social sciences, to promote critical thinking and disseminate the acquired knowledge in the concerned communities, both on the national and international level. CICS.NOVA assigns a particularly relevant role to teaching and advanced training, through the coordination and participation in several Doctoral programs, Master’s and open courses, and by welcoming researchers in academic training. An equally important contribution is the co-creation and knowledge transfer alongside policymakers, companies, and other civil society organisations, particularly through the activities developed by the Observatories and Laboratories. CICS.NOVA also fosters the dissemination and communication of science and knowledge through a strong presence in the scientific community and in the public space. These priorities are guided by the interdisciplinary study of territorial systems and human behaviour, the particularities of the institutions’ functioning and their relations with the surrounding spatial and social contexts.

Directress of the Research Unit: Helena Serra

CICS.NOVA is based at the School of Social Sciences and Humanities (FCSH) of Universidade NOVA de Lisboa, with 4 regional hubs

The Lisbon Public Law Centre for Research (CIDP) stimulates and promotes new research orientations and themes within the area of Public Law. The lecturers and researchers’ expertise in Political Science, Constitutional Law, Administrative Law, and European and International Law is the basis for this scientific activity.

Integrated in one of the oldest and most prestigious Law Faculties of the country and the in most important Portuguese University, CIDP – Lisbon Public Law is the most productive and innovative research centre in Public Law. The centre concentrates the human and academic conditions to achieve the professional and scientific expectancies aimed by its members and support the internationalization of their individual and collective path.

Apart from these initiatives, the affirmation of the CIDP – Lisbon Public Law as a centre competent within the area of Public Law and its internationalisation can be seen in the launch of the journal e-Pública, part of important publication indexes such as the SciELO – Web of Science and Latindex.

CIDP – Lisbon Public Law has almost 100 researchers, including many PhDs and younger research fellows

The film and media arts department at Universidade Lusófona is committed to providing hands-on specialized skill training, to foster individual and collaborative creative growth, and to serve as a testing ground for the application of emerging film and media technologies. Our department promotes both initial, continuous and advance training in the different areas of film and media creation and development, besides actively being engaged in several research projects with partners and organizations at a national and international level.

The department and the students’ productions are regularly funded by the Portuguese Film Institute (ICA) and the university is a full member of CILECT - Centre International de Liaison des Écoles de Cinéma et de Télévision and GEECT - Groupement Européen des Écoles de Cinéma et de Télévision, besides being accredited by the EU for the provision of initial and continuous training, it is also integrated under the European Network of Excellence for film and audiovisual training.

Sala de Cinema Fernando Lopes / Fernando Lopes Movie Theater is located on the Campus of Universidade Lusófona. The movie theater is exclusively dedicated to cinematographic exhibition and for eminently academic use and activities of the Film and Media Arts Department. The cinema, which has 130 seats, is equipped with the most modern DCP technology for digital cinema projection and 7.1 audio technology. The movie theater was named after Fernando Lopes who was a prominent Portuguese film director.
